Featuring

Professor David Deganian
Barry University School of Law

David Deganian is a Visiting Assistant Professor of Law at Barry University School of Law and directs the law school's Environmental and Earth Law Clinic. Prior to joining Barry's faculty, he directed the Metro Atlanta Environmental Justice Project at GreenLaw, a non-profit environmental law firm. Professor Deganian also served for two years as the University of Georgia School of Law's Public Interest Fellow, where he developed environmental justice casework for students in the law school's Land Use Clinic. He speaks frequently on environmental justice issues and has authored a law review article on environmental justice and a report on the disparate siting of polluting facilities in low-income and minority communities in the metro Atlanta region. Professor Deganian received his bachelors degree from the University of Georgia in Sociology and his J.D. from Georgia State University College of Law.
